

ISSUE WARRANTS FOR INSULL AND SIX ASSOCIATES

Charged With Looting Insull - Controlled Utility

Crown Point, Ind., Dec. 20.—(P)—Warrants charging Samuel Insull, Jr., and six others with conspiracy to commit a felony and embezzlement and larceny from the $100,000,000 northern Indiana Public Service Company were in the possession of deputy sheriffs for service tonight.

Indictments against the seven charged, in effect, that they looted the formerly Insull-controlled utility in order to bolster their financial and holding companies in the Insull system.

Judge William J. Murray of Lake county criminal court had custody of the indictments and, under Indiana law, they will not be made public until all the defendants have been apprehended. Authorities did not disclose the amounts of the alleged pecuniations.

These named in addition to young Insull, former chairman of the board of the company, are:

John H. Gihlik of South Chicago, former director of the company; Edward W. Lloyd of Chicago, former director; Mary Dill Plain of Hammond, Ind., president and director; Charles W. Chase of Chicago, former director and vice president of the utility and now general manager of the Indianapolis Street Railway Company; Bernard P. Shearon, vice president and director; Thomas G. Hamilton, former director and now general manager of the Gary, Ind., Street Railway Company.

Judge Murray said he would set bond at $12,000 for each of the defendants. Attorney Fred Crumback, counsel for the company, said all the defendants would surrender here tomorrow. He said none of the Chicagoans would oppose extradition to Indiana for trial.

Dell Plain said the charges were part of a plot instituted on behalf of Howard Duncan, former treasurer of the company, who has admitted embezzling $12,000 from it. He has pleaded guilty to embezzling $1,500 and is awaiting sentence.

Duncan provided a sensation several months ago when, on trial for embezzling $1,500, he calmly announced the amount really was $12,000, but declared the officers and directors had taken the money.

An inquiry was started.

One of the first discoveries reported by made was that a $1,000,000 error in bookkeeping had been made in order to confuse the State Public Service Commission and justify high rates for service.

Although the details contained in the indictments were secret, it was indicated that transfers of assets and questionable means of keeping books were in any way wrong.

An envelope which Duncan handed Judge Murray upon his arraignment, with the remark that it contained enough evidence to send several of the members of the company to the penitentiary, was said to have been the basis of much of the investigation.

HUEY LONG IS FIGHTING WITH BACK TO WALL

Political Uprising Is Sweeping Through Louisiana

By Ralph Whartley
Associated Press Staff Writer
New Orleans, Dec. 20.—(P)—Political uprising against the dictatorship of Huey P. Long has swept the state of Louisiana.

The senator, better known as "Huey the Kingfish," has his back to the wall of fight and venom for his enemies, whom he says he will crush.

The most telling blow against his political dynasty that has ruled Louisiana for five years came in New Orleans today when Mayor T. Semmes Walmley and his major democratic organization broke definitely with Long and his Louisiana Democratic Association over the approaching city election.

"We will have a new deal," said Mayor Walmley. "I would rather go in with a few less votes and a clean background."

"It almost turns my stomach to hear the matter even mentioned to me," said Senator Long.

Out in the country parishes, open warfare against Long has been going on in the form of public meetings. The breaking of the Long ranks followed swiftly on the disturbance in the sixth district where Senator Long's organization sought to hand pick the members of the national congress without holding a primary election. The citizenship revolt in indignation, strapped on their pistols and slung shotguns over their shoulders, and went out to stop the general election. It was called off in three parishes but some five thousand votes out of a total registration of 60,000 voted for Long's candidate, Mrs. B. E. Kemp, up to succeed her husband.

Long was burned in effigy and 20 shots were fired at a man for shouting "Hurrah for Huey."

At a mass meeting in Monroe, resolutions condemning "Longism" were passed. Senator Long and John H. Overton and their state official association were called on to resign.

In Plaquemine a mass meeting was called to seek an end to "corrupt Longism" and a new deal democratic organization was formed.

One of Senator Long's strongholds had been in New Orleans where the large city vote would overcome any shortage of the country vote. His city strength was due mainly to his affiliation with Mayor Walmley's organization, also known as the Choctaw Club.

Escaped Convict Trapped In Auto At Paris, Ill.

Paris, Dec. 20.—(P)—Edward Shouse, one of the ten prisoners who escaped Sept. 26 from the Michigan City, Ind., penitentiary, was captured today but at the cost of the life of an Indiana state policeman.

Patrolman Eugene Teague fell with a bullet wound in his head when he made an impetuous rush to capture the convict.

Captain Matt Leach of the state police said the bullet came from the gun of a brother officer, Lieutenant Chester Butler.

Information had been received that Shouse, who has been linked with the notorious John Dillinger gang, would be in this city. Twenty officers, including Indiana state police, Edgar county Illinois, deputy sheriffs and Paris police, were awaiting him.

Police Open Fire

When two police officers, Detective Sergeant William Shenley of Chicago and Sheriff Jess Barber of Paris, Col., were in the vicinity, they fired at Shouse. The bullet which penetrated his chest, was fired from a .38 Smith & Wesson revolver which he was holding.

Two women accompanying Shouse also were captured. They have their names as Mrs. Frances Brigham, 25, of Port Wayne, Ind., and Ruth Spencer, 24, of San Diego, Calif.

Shouse was serving a sentence of 25 years when he escaped from prison. The sentence was imposed at Terre Haute, Ind., only a few miles from the place of his capture today. He was convicted June 4, 1930, of participation in the holdup of a Terre Haute theater.

Since his escape he has been reported with members of the Dillinger gang. His gang was composed largely of escaped convicts and was reputed to be headed by Dillinger, a bank robber who was delivered from the Lima jail at the time Sheriff Barber was killed.

The capture of Shouse leaves seven of the convicts still at large. James Clark was captured at Hammond, Ind., two days after the prison break. A few days later James Jenkins was shot and killed at the village of Bean Station, Tenn., when he attempted to rob a store keeper.

Shouse and the two women were taken to Indianapolis. Arrangements were made to return Shouse to prison.

Lieut. Butler was in a state of nervous collapse following the shooting of Teague.

Teague was 24 years old and unmarried. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Teague, of Indianapolis.

HOEVERS WILL SPEND XMAS ON SAN JUAN HILL

First Time Family Has Been Home In Seven Years

By Katherine Beebe
Associated Press Staff Writer
Stanford University, Dec. 20.—(P)—For the first time in seven years, the Herbert Hoovers will spend Christmas in their own home here.

The big gray-white house on San Juan Hill, which has seen but little of his traveling companions since it was bought from a friend, the lawyer campus soon after the war, is abuzz with festive preparations, like other homes of the land. The Yuletide board will see an old fashioned family reunion about the Christmas tree, to be carved by the former president.

The Herbert Hoovers, Jr., with their three children, are expected here on Friday from their Southern California home in Sierra Madre, where young Hoover is connected with an aviation company, Allan.

The young son will come Saturday from Fresno, if he "can get off in time" from his work in a bank there.

Pink of Health

Hoover himself, in pink of health and spirits, friends say, smiles frequently these days in his role of citizen and grandfather, who on Christmas morning in at least one little mind, probably rates second in precedence to Santa Claus.

For whatever school-born, shadowy doubts may trouble Peggy Ann, "I going on 8," and 6-year-old Peter, they are not shared by little Joan, who "believes in Santa Claus, of course."

Accompanied by a secretary, or sometimes alone, the former first lady drives her own car to University avenue in Palo Alto, the college town's main street, to search for "loot," as she calls it, to fit the shopping lists which, despite a family edict for "economical Christmas," have a way of growing as the day draws near.

Often she is not recognized by clerks and townfolk. Smiles are going the rounds here over an incident the other day when she entered a shop which has been in charge of the same woman for many years.

"You are Mrs. A., aren't you?" said Mrs. Hoover, advancing cordially. "I believe I met you when I was here before."

Looked at the gray-haired conservatively dressed customer with the puzzled air of one trying to identify a vaguely familiar face. "And you are?—I know I should remember."

Embarrassment on both sides was dispelled in a mutual laugh.

Christmas cards are going out this year to friends for the first time since 1927, after the four-year White House lapse in accordance with long-established custom that the president sends only reciprocations. The number rapidly approached 1,000.

Christmas in far places and many lands have the Hoovers known. Last year they left the White House for a cruise off the Florida coast. The year before they entered it they were in South America. Other Christmases have been in Washington since the one seven years ago when Allan was a Stanford student.

For the grandchildren, it is the first one in the house on San Juan Hill.

The Sinclair Woman's club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Maude Sevier for a one o'clock luncheon. The Sevier home was attractively decorated in keeping with the season.

A short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Clara Moore. The program presented was:

Club song and Christmas carols—Club.

Roll call—Exchange of gifts.

Reading—Mrs. Clara Moore.

The next meeting will be on January 3 with Mrs. Nellie Fox.

AIMEE HUTTON SEEKS DIVORCE FROM SONGSTER

Evangelist Charges Her Mate With Mental Cruelty in Cross Bill

Los Angeles, Dec. 20.—(P)—Charging mental cruelty and marital wrongs, Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, the evangelist, sued David L. Hutton for a divorce today in a cross bill. The suit was filed in the superior court of Los Angeles.

The nine page cross complaint was filed by E. A. Adams, her attorney. A few hours before a train bringing the evangelist away for Christmas from the east arrived in Los Angeles.

Adams said the papers were signed by Mrs. Hutton in Cleveland last Sunday and were rushed to him by airplane for filing. By filing the answer and cross complaint, Mrs. Hutton at once accepted service, Adams said, and took a step calculated to make unnecessary the filing by Hutton's attorney of an amended complaint.

Denying all allegations in Hutton's complaint, the evangelist accused her baritone-voiced husband of causing her mental anguish and humiliation in the Myrtle St. Pierre breach of promise suit by insisting the evangelist pay the $5,000 judgment awarded the Pasadena judge.

Mrs. Hutton charged Hutton would awaken her at night and demand money. She said Hutton threatened to amend his complaint and include additional charges against her unless she consented to a property settlement with him and, through his various actions, made it impossible for her to carry on her work as an evangelist.

For the grandchildren, it is the first one in the house on San Juan Hill.

FARM HOME SURVEY IN SIX COUNTIES

Two of the three judges concurred in the opinion holding the act constitutional. They were Judge Charles I. Dawson of the Western District of Kentucky and Judge Xenophon Hicks of Tennessee. Judge A. M. J. Cochran of the Eastern Kentucky District dissented.

JUDGES UPHOLD SALES TAX LAW

Louisville, Ill., Dec. 20.—(P)—Kentucky's graduated gross retail sales tax law enacted in 1930 and collections from which already have amounted to more than a million dollars, was upheld today by a three-judge federal court here.

Two of the three judges concurred in the opinion holding the act constitutional. They were Judge Charles I. Dawson of the Western District of Kentucky and Judge Xenophon Hicks of Tennessee. Judge A. M. J. Cochran of the Eastern Kentucky District dissented.

Jesse L. Livermore, Missing Twenty Four Hours Returns Home; Says Mind Was Blank

Horse And Wagon With Xmas Sacks Have Disappeared

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 20.—(P)—A horse drawn wagon containing thirteen sacks of parcel post mail disappeared in Brooklyn today. Postal inspectors searching for it were undecided whether to use a bag of oats or guns.

The wagon was leased to the government for Christmas mail delivery. Richard Wade, a substitute carrier, left the horse and wagon standing in front of a house while he went in to make a delivery. When he returned the horse and wagon had disappeared.

Wade called the Midwood postal station and several clerks were sent out to help him search the neighborhood. The stables also were visited in the belief that the horse might have wandered back there for its noon meal.

When the horse and wagon could not be located, police and postal inspectors were notified and an alarm was broadcast.

At the hotel where Livermore said he had spent the night the desk clerk said he was not registered there, however, explained that Livermore had been in the hotel "some time" whether he registered or not.

Just after a police officer had announced that the taxi driver who drove Livermore yesterday from his home to his office said Livermore had been in the hotel "some time" another taxi cab pulled up before the Livermore apartment tonight. Several photographers were nearby.

Livermore, his overcoat pulled close about him, paid off the cab, walked to the private entrance of his ground floor apartment and rang the bell before the photographers realized his identity.

He stood on the steps, shivering a bit, waiting for some one to open the door.

Photographers bulbs flashed before a door was opened by a detective who hastened to the entrance before he recognized the trader. Police had been stationed in the apartment throughout the day.

He saw his wife at 4 p. m. yesterday and told her he was going to keep at home, but she said she would never come to the apartment, but instead walked to the curb before his house summoned a cab, and ordered the driver to go to his office on lower Broadway.

From that point on, he told police his mind was a blank. Detectives at his home said he told them he "vaguely remembered" going to a hotel, but had no clear idea why he had done so.

The driver of the taxicab was questioned at length in the Livermore apartment by F. X. Fay, of the department of justice, and Inspector Francis Kear.

But it was learned that Livermore did not have the taxi driver wait for him outside of his office.

Several times in his glamorous career, Livermore has been threatened in letters. Once, his Great Neck, Long Island, home was robbed of $100,000 in a burglary.

Again, when fear was felt for the safety of his two sons, by his second wife—Jesse Jr., and Paul—he posted a champion pistol shot, Frank Gorman on his estate.

Mrs. Livermore said that there had been no letters of late threatening the operator who went through the panic of 1907 on the "short" side of the market and came out with $3,000,000.

Activities recalled that department of justice officials had turned up an alleged plot last September to kidnap Livermore and Edward L. Doheny, the oil multi-millionaire, when they arrested a former convict, James Walsh, for a gambling murder.

Mrs. Livermore told authorities her husband expected to meet several friends for dinner at a fashionable hotel last night; that he called her frequently when away and that in the absence of calls last night, she became alarmed.

She locked herself in her apartment, refusing to see any one except the authorities.

Inspector Kear said he could not find any hint of domestic trouble.

In discussing Livermore's absence, authorities, associates and friends recalled many of the operator's exploits in the field of finance and speculation.

But he rode the rise of wheat buying at $1.04 and selling at $2.10 was soon after this that he sold his seat on the stock exchange for a paltry $2,000—at a time when they sometimes sold for ten times that much—and went for a long cruise aboard his new $1,000,000 yacht.

HOEVERS WILL SPEND XMAS ON SAN JUAN HILL

First Time Family Has Been Home In Seven Years

By Katherine Beebe
Associated Press Staff Writer
Stanford University, Dec. 20.—(P)—For the first time in seven years, the Herbert Hoovers will spend Christmas in their own home here.

The big gray-white house on San Juan Hill, which has seen but little of his traveling companions since it was bought from a friend, the lawyer campus soon after the war, is abuzz with festive preparations, like other homes of the land. The Yuletide board will see an old fashioned family reunion about the Christmas tree, to be carved by the former president.

The Herbert Hoovers, Jr., with their three children, are expected here on Friday from their Southern California home in Sierra Madre, where young Hoover is connected with an aviation company, Allan.

The young son will come Saturday from Fresno, if he "can get off in time" from his work in a bank there.

Pink of Health

Hoover himself, in pink of health and spirits, friends say, smiles frequently these days in his role of citizen and grandfather, who on Christmas morning in at least one little mind, probably rates second in precedence to Santa Claus.

For whatever school-born, shadowy doubts may trouble Peggy Ann, "I going on 8," and 6-year-old Peter, they are not shared by little Joan, who "believes in Santa Claus, of course."

Accompanied by a secretary, or sometimes alone, the former first lady drives her own car to University avenue in Palo Alto, the college town's main street, to search for "loot," as she calls it, to fit the shopping lists which, despite a family edict for "economical Christmas," have a way of growing as the day draws near.

Often she is not recognized by clerks and townfolk. Smiles are going the rounds here over an incident the other day when she entered a shop which has been in charge of the same woman for many years.

"You are Mrs. A., aren't you?" said Mrs. Hoover, advancing cordially. "I believe I met you when I was here before."

Looked at the gray-haired conservatively dressed customer with the puzzled air of one trying to identify a vaguely familiar face. "And you are?—I know I should remember."

Embarrassment on both sides was dispelled in a mutual laugh.

Christmas cards are going out this year to friends for the first time since 1927, after the four-year White House lapse in accordance with long-established custom that the president sends only reciprocations. The number rapidly approached 1,000.

Christmas in far places and many lands have the Hoovers known. Last year they left the White House for a cruise off the Florida coast. The year before they entered it they were in South America. Other Christmases have been in Washington since the one seven years ago when Allan was a Stanford student.

For the grandchildren, it is the first one in the house on San Juan Hill.

The Sinclair Woman's club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Maude Sevier for a one o'clock luncheon. The Sevier home was attractively decorated in keeping with the season.

A short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Clara Moore. The program presented was:

DISCARDED SILKS MADE INTO FINE RUGS AT HOSPITAL

Chicago W. R. C. Members
Send Much Material For
State Hospital Patients

The Jacksonville State Hospital occupational therapy units have been the recipient of silk stockings and silk pieces for the past twelve years from a very interested member of the Chicago Woman's Relief Corps, No. 62, Mrs. Marie A. Buneaux, 8331 Constance avenue, Chicago, Illinois. Mrs. Buneaux has kept a record of all the stockings and pounds of silk scraps that she has sent during this period of time.

Wednesday, the hospital received 314 pairs of silk stockings and two pounds of silk pieces which have been gathered together during recent months and forwarded by Mrs. Buneaux to the Jacksonville State Hospital. These articles are separated in the class rooms, dyed and made into hooked rugs. A large number of beautiful hooked rugs have been made in this division and issued to the soldierly building, and other wards of the institution where they adorn the halls and add to the cheerfulness of the rooms and corridors of the wards.

The hospital is not only grateful to Mrs. Buneaux, who stands far in the lead, for her interest in collecting these discarded scraps, but also to the other units of the Relief Corps, American Legion Auxiliary and Women's Clubs who have also expressed bundles to the institution. These small scraps to some people mean nothing and are discarded as waste without thought of what might be made of them. Old worn silk hose, silk underwear and other garments can be made into most useful and beautiful rugs by a very simple process which was used by our craftsmen when they made the so-called "carpet" rugs, says the hospital management.

Many patients are occupied in these classes in the occupational therapy units and are very happy in their work. It is hoped in the near future to make the development and progress of these patients as they are received at the institution. First the rug pattern and colors are selected, the rugs are sorted and dyed. They are then cut the desired width and the process of making is begun. It is a source of great satisfaction and delight to them when a rug is completed and put on exhibition. They are as proud of their work as anyone could be and justly so for they manufacture some worth while rugs.

If all the people of this great State of Illinois knew the happiness that is experienced upon the receipt of new material from new fields who are interested in their daily routine, it is the belief of the hospital management that more people would save these discarded articles which bring employment to unfortunates in state institutions who are quarantined from society on account of their mental handicap.

A Letter From Home

There is a way that Jacksonville residents can send a letter from home to relatives at a distance six days a week without writing a line. There is no magic about this. A year's subscription to the Jacksonville Journal will do the trick.

The home town newspaper makes a dandy Christmas present. It is a gift that affords something of interest from day to day, and when received at some distant address, is really a letter from home. The contents of the community, the joys and sorrows of its people, all are set forth in chronological order.

Regularly appearing in the list of a subscription to this newspaper to citizens of this community. If sent with best wishes for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year it continues from month to month, giving the recipient a true record of the happenings of his own community and the world at large. The newspaper easily qualifies among the list of useful gifts.

One Salary For Two

Washington has been wondering at the presence of Frederick E. Lee in the A. A. offices with George Peck. He got no payroll check, and nobody seemed to know much about how he came there. When inquiry was made as to his status, he was described as a "counsel to the administration." But the law provided for a general counsel for the A. A. and the position was filled by another attorney.

When Mr. Peck resigned from the A. A., Mr. Lee also left. Then the secret was out. Lee got a salary, and it was a government check. It was the salary which came to Peck and which he turned over to his friends and associate. Peck himself is independently wealthy, and for several months he has been serving the government without compensation for himself.

Peck and Lee are close personal friends. Peck relied so much on the judgment of Lee that he wanted him at his side in the government service. To keep Lee the A. A. head was willing to work for nothing. Or at least he was in competition from the facts recently revealed.

"Disposed to Listen"

The Pan-American Conference in session at Montevideo, Uruguay, has made overtures for peace between Paraguay and Bolivia. The president of Uruguay sent the warring countries a courteous note in which he pleaded that they listen to the reasonings of sister nations and leave off their fighting. He pleaded in the name of a continent where peaceful settlement of disputes has been the rule, rather than the exception.

Bolivia answered the note with a statement that its government would be "disposed to listen to peace plans being worked out at the conference, plans described as bringing no sacrifice of honor to either country. It is the hope of the western hemisphere that the plans may succeed, and that the blot of a cruel and needless war may be removed from the new world.

But those who have studied the news from that war cannot help wondering what lies back of Bolivia's disposition to listen to peace proposals. In recent battles the Paraguayan army has won decisive victories. In one fight, 6,000 Bolivian soldiers were surrounded and captured. Bolivia has issued a call to the colors for boys of 16 and 17, showing that she is hard pressed for man power.

The struggle is being waged over a few thousand square miles of wilderness, the Chaco Boreal, which neither country has ever tried to develop. Much blood has been spilled, and the question will not be settled if one country is given the lion's share in the treaty of peace.

An Old Dogma Passes

It is interesting to notice that the old legal technicality by which a wife was not allowed to testify in defense of her husband in a criminal case at last has been swept aside by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Sensible Mary Pickford

Mary Pickford, arriving in New York from Hollywood, finds a swarm of reporters waiting for her. She talks to them freely on all subjects but one—her suit for divorce. On that, she says, she has expressed herself already, and she does not propose to have anything more to say about it at all.

And right there this particular movie star shows a bit of good sense that does not always seem to be part of the equipment of Hollywood luminaries. Movie folk may not have any more marital troubles than other people, but when they do have them they get into the headlines, and in all too many cases the participants are ready to tell all on the slightest provocation, or even on no provocation at all.

Miss Pickford has the good taste to keep her domestic troubles to herself. Would that some other headline notables felt likewise!

Coming Through, Again

It is getting so that it is hardly news to learn that Colonel Lindbergh has finished another long and perilous flight on schedule, without a mishap or anything remotely resembling one. His most recent expedition, when you stop to examine it, pretty remarkable as a demonstration of the things a skilled pilot can do with a good airplane; but somehow Colonel Lindbergh succeeded in making it look very easy.

When he made that spectacular flight to Paris, years ago, people said that he was lucky. Then, when they saw more of him, observed the skill with which he handled his plane and the painstaking manner in which he made his preparations so as to leave nothing to chance, they stopped using that adjective.

They began to see that what got him through was not luck, but an uncommon degree of professional competence. Everything that he has done since then simply confirms that opinion.

At any man on earth deserves the title of world's premier aviator, it undoubtedly is this same Colonel Lindbergh.

Views of The Press

WILL THERE BE A "FARMER PARTY?"

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)
The winds that blow down from Minnesota must feel cold to Democratic political leaders for there is little indication that the Northwestern agricultural states are going to maintain the Democratic character they took on last year. Governor William Langer, of North Dakota, is one of the number who foresees the growth of a powerful third party far greater strength than the Farmer-Labor group has had in years past.

It now appears that the real contest in Minnesota is for the Farmer-Labor nomination, with little interest in the nominees of other parties.

Doubtless a powerful third party from the Northwest could be very embarrassing to the Democratic majority at Washington, the more so if it tends to spread among the farm states. Since the greatest single element opposing administration policies is made up of farmers, the third party threat is not one to be taken lightly.

However, America has seen many third party movements, and in every case the new movement was either linked to a personality, as with Theodore Roosevelt and Robert La Follette, or else was confined to one locality, as with the Farmer-Labor party of recent years. Current unrest among farmers reflects the failure of agricultural prices to rise beyond prices in general. It probably is furthered by the rash promises of the administration which led farmers to expect the impossible.

In the light of past experience, there is little basis for assuming that this time the agricultural states will make a clean break with the two traditional parties and form a minority bloc. In many administrations they have had a bloc for limited purposes in Congress, particularly in the Senate. But when it comes to creating a new political party and making it effective over a number of states, Washington, with its patronage has the whip hand. You not only cannot count third parties until they are hatched, but you cannot be sure of them until they are fairly grown.

NAME COMMITTEE TO ASSIST WITH CORN-HOG PLAN

Names of nine men appointed by the state advisory committee to be members of the temporary campaign committee for the government's corn-hog adjustment program in Morgan county were received Wednesday by Farm Adviser I. E. Paret.

Members of the newly appointed committee are: C. D. Ransdell, Franklin; H. D. Kamm, Franklin; A. H. Dwyer, Waverly; Erwin Aufdenkamp, Chapin; C. F. Corrington, New Berlin; Wallace Hembrough, Jacksonville; R. E. Emil Roegge, Mercedes; C. A. Beavers, Litterberry; and Byron Stewart, Jacksonville, R. 2.

The state advisory committee which appointed the county committee is composed of Dean H. W. Mumford, director of extension, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois; chairman; J. E. Fulkerson, Jerseyville; Ray E. Miller, director of live stock marketing for the Illinois Agricultural Association, Chicago; and J. H. Lloyd, assistant director of the Illinois State Department of Agriculture, Springfield.

Appointment of the temporary county committee marks the first step in the local campaign calling for renting to the government of 20 to 30 per cent of the average corn acreage grown during the past two years, the basis of payment to be 30 cents a bushel on the average yield.

W. G. Goebel, Convicted Banker, Placed Under Probation For 3 Years

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Federal District Judge Charles G. Briggie today placed William G. Goebel, convicted Jacksonville banker, on probation for three years.

With Millard F. Dunlap, president of the defunct Ayers National Bank at Jacksonville, Goebel was convicted on false entry and conspiracy charges in October. Goebel was cashier of the bank.

Dunlap has appealed his sentence.

Action of Judge Briggie in Goebel's case has been expected for several weeks, as the court took his petition under advisement after he was found guilty at Springfield.

His case was investigated by a special parole officer, Basil W. Ogs, who was appointed by the court. Ogs made several trips to Jacksonville to confer with a number of citizens.

Goebel and Dunlap were tried on the same indictment. Dunlap was sentenced to the penitentiary but is at liberty under bail while his case is before the Court of Appeals. His case will probably be heard Jan. 9.

Dunlap was sentenced by Judge Briggie some time ago to two years in jail and a fine of $5,000.

According to testimony at the trial, Judge Briggie declared, Goebel made the actual false entries in the bank's books, but did it at the order of Dunlap, president of the institution.

The entries in question concerned interest on a $30,000 note of D. M. Flynn. Testimony showed that the money was loaned Flynn by Dunlap at the request of Oscar Nelson, former state auditor and treasurer.

Interest was over paid on the note but entries were made regularly on the dates payments were due.

Goebel had been free on $2,500 bond and Dunlap's bond is $10,000.

According to the terms of probation, Goebel must reside in writing each month to Basil W. Ogs, U. S. probation officer, and must not leave the jurisdiction of the court without consent.

WORKERS WILL GET CHECKS THIS WEEK BEFORE CHRISTMAS

"Pay day before Christmas" is in prospect for 945 Morgan county men who are now employed on Civil Works projects. The CWA week in this county ends on Friday, and officials will strive to get the checks in the mails by Friday night so that the workers can receive their money by Saturday.

This week's payroll will be about $15,000, as the entire quota is working. Some of the crews got in only a half day yesterday because of rains, but the time will be made up if weather conditions permit.

Mrs. Tillie J. Kelly, director of relief for the county, is now making a tour of the various projects. She reports good progress on all jobs. The foremen and the men are showing excellent cooperation, she said, and the morale of the work crew is good.

There is still probability that the Morgan county quota will be increased. No official orders have been received. Morgan county's quota has been filled since December 15, when the last contingent of workers was assigned to jobs.

County May Buy Machine Gun For Sheriff's Force

A machine gun capable of spurring 600 bullets per minute may become the property of Morgan county, for use of the sheriff's office. A representative of a company that manufactures such weapons has been in conference with the county commissioners this week, and they may decide to purchase a gun to curb serious lawlessness should emergencies arise.

The "sample" carried by the salesman is a Thompson 45 calibre machine gun. It takes either 50 or 100 bullet clips. The weapon is a compact piece of deadly machinery, hardly larger than an ordinary rifle.

Equipped with such a weapon, an official could, if necessary, cope with almost any emergency. A demonstration may be arranged if the commissioners decide to invest in the gun. Twenty machine guns of similar make are now in use by police departments and sheriff's forces of Illinois.

LEGION PROGRAM BEFORE CONGRESS SPEAKER'S THEME

The program of veteran rehabilitation which the American Legion will lay before Congress when it meets in January was explained to members of the Lions club Wednesday by Rev. Fr. Frank Lawler. That program, he explained, seeks justice for both the veteran and the taxpayer. It does not call for the repeal of the Economy Act, but for its amendment to remedy some of the hardships the act has caused.

The speaker explained that rehabilitation is not new; it was not invented by the Legion. Ancient Rome provided for the care of her war veterans by the levy of a 5 per cent tax on all inheritances not left to a direct heir, and a 1 per cent tax on all goods sold at public auction. The revenue thus provided was distributed proportionately among the Roman veterans.

The church provided care for its soldiers during the middle ages. England passed its first law in 1592 for the care of the veterans of the war of 1588. The Massachusetts Bay colony modeled its own pension law upon this act, and so also did Maryland.

The Continental Congress provided pensions for the soldiers of the Revolution, and officers received half pay for five years after the close of the war. A pension law for veterans was passed by Congress in 1818.

The present program proposed by the Legion calls first for the restoration of compensation to veterans disabled during service. This would reduce the pension they were receiving March 20, 1933, when the Economy bill was passed. The program calls, second, for hospitalization of all ex-service men who are financially unable to get it for themselves.

In the third place, the program would classify as service-connected cases, which includes mental and tubercular patients. It is impossible to the evidence demand to secure care for these cases. Some mental troubles developed two or three years after the war. Men who witnessed untold horrors were able to shake off the impressions until something within their mind snapped. Others who went into the front lines with colds and endured all kinds of exposure, may not have shown spots on their lungs when they were discharged from service. But today they are tubercular. It is for these cases the Legion is asking care.

The fourth point in the program calls for care for the widows and orphans of men who were killed in the war. The knowledge that wives and children will be provided for makes death

J. P. Robinson Funeral
Funeral services for John P. Robinson of Fieldon were held at the Gubser chapel Tuesday morning, December 19th at ten o'clock with Rev. W. A. Steinkraus officiating. Interment was in the Fieldon cemetery. The deceased was sixty-five years of age at the time of his death. He had been ill for some time and had been a patient at the Barnard hospital in St. Louis for one week. He died at that institution Sunday morning, December 17th at ten o'clock.

W. J. Twomey, a foreman at the International Shoe factory in this city, went to St. Louis this week to consult a specialist in regard to an injury sustained about three weeks ago.

Twomey was coming down a stairway in front of a fellow workman at the plant when the latter slipped and in falling kicked Twomey in the back. The latter was thrust out into space and landed on the floor of the building sustaining an injury to his back. He was not thought to be seriously hurt but when his condition failed to improve he was advised to have an examination made by a specialist. The x-ray examination disclosed that one of the vertebrae in the back of Twomey was cracked and he will have to wear a cast for some time.

Funeral services for Mrs. Eliza Mae Gill of Dow, Illinois, were held Tuesday afternoon, December 19th from the Newbern church. Rev. Hill of Jacksonville officiated and interment was in the Newbern cemetery.

Mrs. Gill died at her home at Newbern Saturday evening, December 16th at 8:30 o'clock following a long illness. She was born near Dow, Illinois, June 9, 1870 the daughter of John E. and Elizabeth Mason Swann. At the time of her death she was sixty-three years of age.

The deceased is survived by her husband, John H. Gill, one son, Mason Gill and one grandson, Robert Mason Gill all of Newbern; and one brother, Floyd Swann.

Meat Demonstration
At a meeting to be held by the Jersey County Farm Bureau at their office in Jerseyville Wednesday evening, December 20th, Lyman J. Bratzke, formerly of the Meats Division of Kansas State College, who is temporarily with the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois, will demonstrate up-to-date methods of cutting and curing pork. The organization of how to cut a beef carcass so as to give a fair distribution of meat to all members will also be discussed.

The Farm Bureau points out that three cent hogs afford the farmer an opportunity to provide his winter pork supply at extremely low prices; provided he will slaughter, cure and cure his own hogs. Present hog prices supply cured bacon at 7 cents, fresh Boston at 4½ cents, sausage at 4½ cents, fresh picnic at 4 cents and lard at 3 cents per pound. These prices do not include labor.

A 4 cent steer or heifer, if home-slaughtered, will provide porterhouse steak at 16 cents, sirloin steak at 13 cents, rib roast at 11 cents, round steak at 11 cents, chuck roast (including the arm) at 8 cents, rump roast at 6 cents, plate (including brisket, at 4 cents) and lean trimmings (ham burger) at 5½ cents per pound. It is usually impossible for one family to utilize an entire beef carcass but eight farmers may organize a "beef ring."

Orange crepe paper was used as the base for a clay field with streamers of white crepe marking off the yard lines. Goal posts were erected at either end, orange and black tapers serving as the markers.

From each ball a tinsel streamer led to the place of a guest and when the streamer was pulled a tiny chocolate Santa was found as a favor. Carnations were also presented the guests as favors. More Than Ever It's THINGS to WEAR This Christmas

Men always have preferred things to wear to gadgets and gewgaws. This year many actually need them. Husbands and fathers have foregone new suits and overcoats so that wives and children would not feel the pinch; many a young fellow has seen the price of longed-for ties or shirts invested in a dinner or the movies. Now is the time to make it up to them, and giving sensible, stylish things to wear is the way.

The princely gift is a

BEARDSTOWN, CRIMSONSONS MEET FOR JUG TONIGHT

H. S. DRAMATIC MUSIC CLUBS GIVE PROGRAM

A large enthusiastic audience enjoyed the beautiful and unique performance given last evening by the dramatic and music clubs of the high school. The entertainment was divided into three parts. The first was a group of songs given with splendid interpretation by the Treble Clef Club, the Boys' Glee Club, the Boys' Acapella Choir and the Sixth Period Mixed Chorus. Under the skilled direction of Miss Lena Mae Hopper, these organizations presented a brilliant performance.

The second part was a play with a gorgeous setting, depicting a magician's dwelling in a strikingly realistic manner. The plot contained many humorous situations, which were handled gracefully, and the principal parts were remarkably well taken. The story was interesting and the action moved at a swift pace from start to finish. Under the able supervision of Miss Frances Brown, a finished production was achieved.

The last part of the program was effective with the choir singing in Old English costume approaching the Christmas tree from the back of the auditorium. The chorists sang their carols around the beautiful tree, while the spotlight played upon the solo singers. Each solo part was admirably rendered and added greatly to the appeal of the production. Miss Mary Tormey again displayed her remarkable ability as accompanist for the entire performance.

ASHTAND CIVIL WAR VETS HAD VARIED EXPERIENCES

After his release from the hospital he again enlisted this time at Chattanooga, Tenn. He was then commissioned first lieutenant and placed in charge of his company. Shortly following his commission General Sherman was sent to take charge. The regiment numbered 90,000. In the battle of Chattanooga, many northern men were captured and taken to Andersonville prison.

The brigade of which Mr. Baxter was numbered stood guard the night before the famous first battle begun on that march the sea battle took place at Chattanooga and there were many minor conflicts along the way.

This brigade under Sherman marched to Rome, Ga. and there Mr. Baxter was again wounded and sent to Lookout Mountain Hospital. His case was investigated and resulted in an honorable discharge from service as a result of gunshot wound.

Once more he enlisted in another company, was accepted and commissioned captain—after which he was sent to Tennessee. The war was rapidly approaching its close and then on the duties were lightened.

Mr. Baxter's pride in having won the blue uniform is obvious. He remembers in detail personalities of his commanders and upon being asked the name of his favorite officer—without an instant's hesitation answered "Jeff C. Davis." Today at the age of 93 he is amazingly alert on topics of the day, an inveterate reader, a man typically of the old school.

Mrs. Paul Roach shopped in the city yesterday from the Winchester community.

Our first guess about the Beards-town tournament drawings was that it was an amazing success. We guessed that Jacksonville High would have to play both Ashtand and Beards-town if they hoped to win the tournament, and such is the case.

However, the Crimsons did get one break. They were scheduled to play Ashtand in the first game on Wednesday night, and will have nothing to do at the tournament until Friday night.

In the meantime, the Crimsons will entertain Beards-town here tonight. Coach Frank Walker is polishing off his pre-Christmas schedule with one of those natural rival affairs, and it should make a large number of the basketball faithful.

Mark Peterman, Springfield high coach, told us the other night when he was over here to officiate during the Millikin-Willamette game that he could put a team of players on the floor averaging over 6 feet 11 inches. And he may do it before the season is over.

Peterman believes his boys have that sort of stuff in them that will make winners this year. This boy Scheffer, who looked good last year as sophomore, looks still better this year as a junior and with his six feet four inches of length.

That means that Routt high has its work cut out for Jan. 13, the date the Red and Black eagles will come to this city for a bout with the Rockets.

Speaking of Routt, the Rockets have added a name to their schedule since their season tickets were printed. That name is to be played Friday night with Quincy Academy here. Season ticket holders will be permitted to use their tickets for this game. Entrance will be granted by showing the ticket.

The Illinois-Millikin game is history but some of the events in connection with it haven't been told yet. We had a talk with Coach Leo Johnson before the game, and he wanted to know whether there was a police guard around to guarantee safe passage.

Long and Lanky Hank Gill, assistant coach of Millikin, accompanied the team here. Hank was approached by Robey Burns I. S. D. coach, with a proposition to referee the Routt-I. S. D. basketball game, but he had to turn it down because his schedule was filled for that date.

Folks around here will never forget the work Gill and Art Hill of Wesleyan in a district tournament several years ago, and their work the year following in the Central States Deaf tournament.

One of the yells used by Havana rooters the other night when Coach Beckers lads eked out a victory over Beards-town was:

"California oranges Arizona cactus We're using Beards-town Just for practice."

The following day the principal of the Havana high school issued orders that the yell was not to be used again. He termed it poor sportsmanship.

STATE ST. CHURCH SUPPER PROGRAM ATTENDED BY 90

A pot luck Christmas supper was enjoyed by 90 members of the State Street Presbyterian church Wednesday evening. The supper was served at tables in the social room of the church and an informal program in charge of Mrs. J. R. Bunch was rendered.

Several musical numbers were rendered by the church choir and the Ladies' trio gave two selections. Readings by a number of young people were followed by a talk by the superintendent of the Sunday school, John Furry. Rev. Glen Schillerstrom gave a talk on the significance of Christmas to conclude the program.

Mrs. J. S. Findley had charge of the serving committee.

Roodhouse

Mrs. Harmon Schrader of Springfield is visiting her mother, Mrs. Will Roodhouse until after the Christmas holidays.

Rev. W. R. Johnson, local Baptist pastor, officiated at the funeral services of Barkley Smead held at the home of his sister, Miss Laura Smead Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. Casket bearers were: Harve Allen, Arthur and Otis Spencer, Robert Prather, Raymond Cummings, and Albert Newsum. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. George McAndrews, Mrs. Alva Spencer and Harbert True, with Mrs. Floyd Spencer as accompanist. Interment was made in the Martins Prairie cemetery.

Mrs. William Sage entertained the T. N. T. club at their home Wednesday afternoon. Those at play were: Miss Jane Neal, Miss Ruth King, Miss Kathryn Roodhouse, Mrs. Ralph Beck, Mrs. Fred Harris, M. Ward Logan, Mrs. Paul Ashlock and Mrs. Sage. Dainty refreshments were served after play. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ralph Beck.

DIXIE DUGAN

Lost at Sea

By J. P. McEVROY and J. H. STRIEBEL

The UNKNOWN BLOND By Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DAVID BANNISTER understood that to find out who killed FRANK KING, orchestra leader, Bannister is an author and former newspaper man. He works on the murder case of FRANK KING, star reporter on the spot.

Among those suspected are JULIUS FRANK, a friend, and known to have visited KING shortly before his death; HERB MAY, a friend who wrote KING a threatening letter; and JOE PARKHURST, down-and-out, volatile actor. It is also known that MELVINA HOLLESTER, mid-aged starlet, has quarreled with KING recently.

AL BIRGAN, friend of KING's, is found dead in a wrecked automobile. Bannister persuades the police chief to let Juliet come to his aunt's home, ostensibly as a guest, but really to find out if the girl believes herself free they can learn more about her.

GOY-NOR, maid in the Coleman home, tells Gaiety and Bannister that on the night FRANK was murdered his name, DENZEL, was telephoned to ALBIRGAN, who was at her home at that time.

Bannister arrives home and finds a letter waiting for him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVI

THE handwriting was unfamiliar and the postmark blurred. Bannister was trying to make it out when he heard footsteps and turned.

"David!" Kate Hewlett exclaimed from the doorway. "Is anything wrong? Aren't you feeling well?"

Bannister laughed. "Why, of course, I'm all right."

Mrs. Hewlett looked relieved. "You're all right? I saw you coming up the walk and it gave me a start. It's been so long since you've come in at this hour I thought something must have happened."

Bannister slipped the letter into his pocket. "Can't a fellow knock off early just one afternoon," he asked, "without breaking a leg or something for an excuse?"

"Of course you can," his aunt agreed. "Come on into the living room. I've been showing Juliet some old pictures."

She led the way into the adjoining room. Juliet France sat on a low stool before the davenport, a huge, old-fashioned photograph album in her lap. She looked up, smiling, as Bannister appeared.

"I've just been seeing the cutest picture of you," she informed him. Bannister took one look and stopped, horror-stricken. "Aunt Kate," he demanded, "I thought you promised me you'd never show anyone those baby pictures again? You said—"

Kate Hewlett's manner was unruffled. "Did I, David?" she asked. "Well, I must have forgotten. I was showing Juliet some of the old styles that used to be fashionable and we happened to come across those others. She agreed with me that they're real sweet."

"They are," the girl told him. "I thought that one with the little woolly lamb—" she'd try not to show it.

HIS aunt asked a question or two and he answered. Juliet France arose and went to the window.

"Why, it's snowing!" she exclaimed. "It started just before I caught the car to come home," Bannister told her. "It's not very cold, though."

"I love snow," the girl said. "I'd like to be out in it."

"Well," Mrs. Hewlett suggested crisply, "why don't you and David go for a walk?" She turned to her nephew. "You could take her over to Winthrop Park. It's real pretty with the snow on the trees. I've been wanting Juliet to get out and see more of Tremont."

Bannister looked at the girl. "Would you like to go?" he asked. "I'd love it!"

Bannister got to his feet. "You'd better bundle up," he warned. "It's not cold but after being in the house all day you'll feel the difference."

"She can wear my sweater under her coat," Kate Hewlett said practically. "And my galoshes. I'll get them right out!"

Five minutes later they set out. The air was filled with the soft snow flakes, swirling and dancing. The prim row of houses on either side of the street with their prim trees and shrubs looked friendlier, more attractive through the faint haze of white.

"See," Bannister said, "it's not cold. The snow melts almost as soon as it touches the ground."

The girl caught several snow flakes on the green wool of her sleeve and held them up. "How beautiful!" she asked, holding the arm up.

They were, but Bannister was surprised to realize how long it had been since he had considered that he remembered as a small boy in his first years at school discovering the intricate patterns of the snow flakes. Elaborate designs and each one different. He remembered a song they had sung in school about Jack Frost who came in the night and painted the window panes. It made him feel unaccountably young— younger than he had felt for years.

BANNISTER said on impulse, "I'll race you to the corner!" It was more than half of a long block but he finished only a step or two ahead. She came up, laughing and breathing deeply, her cheeks pink.

"Oh!" she said, "that was fun!" "Exercise is what I've been needing, I guess," he agreed. "Now that you're warmed up we can walk!"

Bannister adjusted his long, swinging stride to the girl's. "Let me know if I walk too fast for you," he cautioned.

"You won't."

They set off briskly. The girl seemed content not to talk, as was Bannister. Presently they passed the corner lot where, in school days, his gang had played baseball. He remembered an amusing incident and told it. Then he went on, talking about kid stunts, about the good times and trials and heart breaks of those days. There was the time he and Bill Schwartz staged a turtle race and his turtle wandered into church. There was the time the whole gang worked for weeks, trying to save money for the circus, and then, the day before it opened, three of them came down with measles.

Juliet smiled and shook her head.

head. "But that must have been a horrible disappointment!" she said. "I can still remember my first circus. But then, I love circuses, even now."

"Do you?" Bannister asked. "So do I."

They had reached the park. It was a park like hundreds of others in as many cities, but with the snow falling a little faster now than it had been. Winthrop park had real beauty. Trees and shrubs took on queer, haphazard shapes with their glistening, white covering. The snow sifted down in gay spirals, pirouetted and whirled, blurring the landscape.

"Why, they're all like Christmas trees!" Juliet France exclaimed. "Great white Christmas trees. Look at that big one there. Isn't it beautiful?"

BANNISTER agreed that it was a beautiful sight. They went on to the rustic bridge over the lagoon which, a little later, would become a skating pond. "There used to be a zoo," he explained, "but that went the way of all municipal appropriations. Further up this path there's a place I used to like. It's high enough so that you can see most of the town."

Then went on until, standing at the top of the gradual incline, Tremont spread out before them. There was little to be seen except an expanse of white, dotted with a myriad of lights. The wind was colder on the hill and Bannister drew closer to the girl as he pointed out familiar landmarks.

"Getting cold?" he asked. She denied it. "Just the same," he said, "we'd better be starting back. It's a good walk."

They retraced their steps. The sky had been cloudy when they left the house but now it was much darker. At a street crossing that was slippery Bannister took the girl's arm. He held it the rest of the way home, assuring himself it was no more than courtesy. The streets really weren't safe.

They reached the white cottage and stepped into the cheerful warmth and light. Bannister, helping the girl out of her coat, recognized a familiar odor.

"Popcorn?" he exclaimed. "Aunt Kate's making popcorn balls!"

His aunt appeared in the doorway. "I'm not making them," she corrected. "They're made. You'll find a bowl full on the dining room table. Bring it into the living room. David, I thought you'd be hungry after your walk."

"And am I?" Bannister exclaimed, disappearing into the dining room.

He returned with the bowl filled with popcorn balls. "Take one," he urged Juliet. "They're one of Aunt Kate's specialties. You'll never know what a masterpiece a popcorn ball can be until you've tried one."

"They look marvelous," the girl said, smiling.

Kate Hewlett looked at her. "I believe the walk did you good, Juliet. Put a little color into your cheeks."

It was true. There was a light in the girl's eyes, too, to match the glow of her cheeks.

Bannister helped himself to a popcorn ball and sank back into a chair, sighing with contentment. He was to remember the afternoon always because it was followed, almost immediately by the most shocking event of those two weeks of drama and tragedy.
